In assigning the award, seven success factors were evaluated: 'Strategy', 'Skills and Innovation', 'Commitment and Corporate Culture', 'Governance and Performance Measurement', 'Sustainability', 'Supply Chain' and 'Internationalization'. The premium was awarded by a jury of experts consisting of Fabio Antoldi, Professor of Business Strategy at ALTIS Università Cattolica; Renato Goretta, member of the National Presidential Council of Piccola Industria di Confindustria; Marta Testi, CEO of Elite-Euronext. The award ceremony took place on Tuesday October 4th at Palazzo Mezzanotte, headquarters of Borsa Italiana-Euronext.

“Congratulations to the Manuli Ryco Group for this important recognition”, say Ernesto Lanzillo, Deloitte Partner and Deloitte Private Leader, and Andrea Restelli, Deloitte Partner and BMC Manager for Italy. “This edition, like the one in 2021, took place in a difficult context, marked not only by the continuing effects of the pandemic, but also by the eruption of a war scenario that had serious repercussions for companies: from supply chain disruptions to expensive raw materials, from the energy crisis to the food crisis, with inflation rates reaching record levels. Even in this challenging context, the award-winning companies have shown resilience, innovated and continued to be flagships of excellence, demonstrating the strength and great potential of Made in Italy entrepreneurship”.

Mr. Dardanio Manuli, Chairman and CEO of the Manuli Ryco Group, wanted to dedicate the award to the entire Manuli Ryco team, which has been successfully tackling an extremely difficult health, economic and geopolitical environment for years.
